From: ehbarak <ehbarak1@gmail.com> [10.0.0.3]
To: "Edward Temko" <temkon@me.com>
CC: "Nili (Priell) Barak" <nilipriell@gmail.com>
Date: 3/31/2016 9:39:18 PM UTC
Subject: Re: ch 15

Ok. True

Sent from my iPhone

On 31 Mar 2016, at 13:43, Edward Temko <temkon@me.com> wrote:

> Working on draft of Ch 15, and you ask where I got figures I used for 1980s training accidents… Came from one of our interviews:
>
> …That together with my dealing with reducing the number of fatalities in training… It started because there was a huge worry. We used to lose, at the beginning of 80s, some sixty to eighty soldiers per year. That was Raful's time. Then, about 85, Moshe, it was fifty to sixty. Then, in Dan Shomron's time, we reduced it to 35 or 40. Not as I told you. Now I see that where I started, in 91, with 34. It went back to 27 in the second year. Third year, 17. Fourth year, 21. It was an unprecedented achievement, that in 93, there were zero accidents in training. All the seventeen were car accidents, which is also another issue to fight. But…
>
> Let me know if we should check further.
> Best
> Ned